

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

This disclosure described a method for purchases through a network. A consumer can directly purchase products at the manufacturer's web site through a browser and the Internet. The database of the web site will relate the product to relevant free gifts so that the consumer can directly select the free gift he wants through the network. In such a way, the consumer can actually obtain the gift he wants and the manufacturer can lower the cost of the gifts (especially true for installation software).